MIXED BLOOD.

"GATH" PHILOSOPHIZES ON THE AMERICAN MIXED RACES.

The Canadlan Half-Breeds-The Spanish Blood in Mexico and Central Amerlen -l'eople of Monniain au 1 of Plata-Our Puture.

[Finelanati Finquirer]

The Spanish blood in the countries to the south of us shows all the counges the English World will show under strange coalitions. The English blood has maxed with but two ther races; the Americans have greatly : nixed with the negroes, and the British have somewhat mixed with the Hin-You see the same results in these two mix-British Ilindoo is showing an embarrassing British. The Americans have never mixed were mainly made by the Scotch of the southern states among the Cherokeos an I one or two other nations. Hence you find in the northwestern part of which is rapidly increasing in size as the British America that there are two distinct cresh exploits of the dime novel adveaturers types of Indian baif-breeds, of whom Riel is an illustration, and the Scotch balfbreed. It seems that the Scotch and French haif-breeds at this time rather fraternize. There is nothing wonderful la this. Scotland hal a long political connection with the' French, Before Scotlan I, under the great in lividuality of John Knox, all!cd herelf politically with England, the Scottlsh throne was occupied by French half-breeds, of whom Mary Queen of Scots was the most celebrated.

You will observe that the belligerent have Scotch names, like Ross, or Ridge, or Mackintosh, or McGilvray. Old John Kuox himself derived his political education from the French, just as Mary Queen of Scots, whom he betrayed to the English, derived her interesting characteristics from her French mother and husbani.

The Spanish countries have shown very different degrees of liberality, according to the element with which the Spanish blood frateralzed. In Mexico the Spanish race is mixed with Aztec or Indian. In Central America it is mixel with Indian, also, but with very frequent exceptions. In northern South America the Spanish type often exists clear, and there it is seldom tran quil Brazil is but little Spanish, and chiefly Portuguese. In Paraguay the In dian element in the ruling class is almost paramount. In the Argentine country and in Urnguay there is an admixture of Italiau and of Anglo-Saxon. After all, the nature of the country itself very much affects the race. In the Argentine country is good land, adapted for grazing and for pastora life, and hence the people are tranquil They hal their guerrillas, as the Texam with a similar country hal. The Chilians have kept their raco somewhat clear, and they adjoin the Argentiae country and its iblilties, and have but little descri land at hand. When you go north to Bo livia and l'ern vou have an arid and wile country close at hand, whose cow-boys and ex-slaves ulfect the race.

The United States is tranquil topographi cally; as where the land is good and nature does not shake up the country much, the so ciety is better than could have been expected from Its components. When you in ISSJ nearly 800,900 people. Wisstrike rough and jagged mountain countries like mountain Kentucky and Teanessee, and the broken parts of Missourl you invo i people differing, yet alike, as upon the slope of the Pyrenees, where the Pasques defy al civilizations. On the other ban l, strong channels of emigration pourel through people for years, as through the Swise, or even through the Mormons, will turn then iato a race of lun-keepers.

In our country the changes of thought and opinion are won derful considering our youth, We are in danger of losing our entire interest in everything ouiside of our own country, and baving no foreign policy whatever, and per haps in time of losing our distinctive na tional prejudice. There seems to be in the fold.
United States an Immense number of people who are chiefly hostile to the Americans and to whatever among them has heretofor been considered admirable and successful There will be an awakening from this state of things. Some day a brash and little enemy will thunder at our ports, and the people will suddenly wake up from theli books of philosophy and literary reviews to understand that if they do not have faith lithemselves they will dostroy faith in then from every other quarter. It is better to possess a patriotic ignorance than a peevisl and unpatriotic enlightenment. No nation on the globe to-day Is so hostile to foreign influence, to naturalization and to the lessons of history as the English nation from which we come. The stability of those people, their toilef in themselves, however misinfermed, amounts to a national passion Our country is full of half-educated snob out of college who consider that there is no duty worth performing like disabusing the American mind of its traditional self-re spect

THE DIME NOVEL CURE.

A Scrap-Book Containing the Adventures of the Boys Who Read Dime Novels.

(Bostea Heral I.) A trustee of the Providence public library nas undertaken to cure the small boy of his nterest in the dime novel, an I can be sald does or the general lumpitionts of india, to have succeeded. He has met the anteselent with its consequent. He has gathered tures; the American negro will take a hand into a scrap-book the adventure; of the boys in any future wars of this country, and the who real dime novels, and has male it his pusiness in a quiet way to ask the boys one real just now to do all the fighting for the by one who are laterested in the e stories to pend an hour or two in reading, not the much with the Indian squaws; the maginative story, but the way in which half-breeds of Indian blood in our he small boy has attempted to realize how boys ought to live an I what they ought to be allowed to do. It is said that the dime lovel boy usually reads the scrap-took, are added to it, about two hours. Ho then ays it down in disgust, and nothing can nduce him to return to those storles again. 'e asks the person in charge of the readingconn for a botter class of books.

This cure of a disease with it town polson ans been so effective in Providence that the trustee in question is thinking of taking out a patent for the process, lest other libraries and the heads of families und the guardians of the small boy generally may appropriate his invention without due credit. The scrapbook allu ted to is called "Tho Dime Novel families among the Cherokees nearly all Illustrated," and it is suggested to this genleman before he goes much further that he should put his scrapbook to press, secure his copyright at home and abroad, and stand up for honors as the only man in the world who has so far succeeded in outwitting the average American boy, by giving him a uffleient antidote to the evil which, lu the orm of devilish literature, he is anxious to take luto his mind and heart, to make him niandon these storles in disgust. He is the first among moderns to give point to the old saying. "Look on this pict-are and then on that," and it is the other icture that is powerful enough to wind up he dimo novel business. These are the day: f realism in literature, au I this man, going urther than Mr. Howells or Mr. James, or even M. Zola, has substitute I the pastepo and seissors for the imagination, gathering is horrors and tragedies from actual life, in the tirm belief that if truth is not stranger than fletloa, it has a wonderful prower at the right moment over an awakened min l.

The Winnipeg Region.

["Gath" in Circ mate Er pulser.] At the outbreak of our civil war the entire colony about Winnipeg, comprising all the white people from Lake Superior to the Rocky mountains, was not over 7,000 souls. 1856 the whole population was 116 Scotch 92 Canadinus, 4) English, 13 Irish, 2 Swiss I Norwegian and 316 half-breeds. The colony was running into the ground, and its rerival is solely due to the building up of Minno ota and Wisconsin and the adjacent postions of the United States. Minnesota, which began its political existence territory about 1849, contained consin lad 1,000,000, Michigan 1,600,000, and even Dakota, which was hardly born, had 135,000. Therefore, we had banked up igninst the British-American line west of Lake Haron the astonishing number of approximating 4,000,000 of people. The wheat product of Minnesota especially had become mormous.

If one reads the books of the present day on the resources of that region, and thea turns back to the information conveyed twenty years ago, he will see the greatest livergence. It was related in the American yclopedia, first addition, that turnips were killed by the summer frosts; that barley did not ripen with any degree of certainty, and the highest yield of potatoes was only six-

FRESH DISCOVERIES IN THE YELLOW-STONE NATIONAL PARK.

Remarkable Objects of Interest in the Lower Geyser Bashs-Bolling Paint Bowls-Marvelons Plowers-The Skull Geyser-Bolling Sand.

[St. Pant Globe.]

Among the recent arrivals in the city from the north was Mr. G. L. Honderson, one of the superintendents of the Yellowstone National park, who has resided in the park sines 1882. During that period he has made many valuable researches and disoverles. Ills investigations in that portion of the park lying in forks of the Fireholo river south of Marshall's hotel were especially important. The discovertes made in the park last year are considered of especial value and importance, both from their extuit and character. Mr. Henderson, replying to immiries said:

The whole of last November rult the first half of December was so fine in the Geyser basin that n party, consisting of myself, Assistant Supercatendent W. J. Weimer and George W. Marshall, were onable i to nake the most thorough and careful search that had ever been made in that regin of hot springs, spouting gaysers and mul vol-

"What the old guide books designate as the Lower Geyser Basia contained over a thousand objects of special interest, not over three of which have been named or even noticed, un l at best the whole was condenso l into a few lines or a single paragraph an I for the reason that it was both a t rra incognita and tunominata.

The Chemical Basin, of which there are three divisions, contains vast bowls or basins of decompose I rock, pulverized an 1 In a liquid, jeily like form, of every shade and color, and so hot that it would be instant death to any living thing which had the misfortune to slip down the olly walls into no of these secthing abysses.

"The most remarkable of these boiling paint bowls I named Lindren's Garden, in noner of Baron von Lindren, of Amsterdam, who during his visit to the National park last October was the tirst to observe and to sketch the marvelous floral forms that rise incessantly and bloom a brief moment and then fade away, to be succeeded by a never ending and ever varying display of lillies, roses, suntlowers. This kaleidoscople tloral morphology Is created on the surface of a thick cream colored paint in a bowl thirty feet in diameter. Every flower form is well defined and is never repeated. No waste and no delay. "This basin iles south of Chemical Rasin and is even more wonderful, though in another way. It contains over 300 miniature mountains, each of which sends out pulls of steam and several of them are active mudvolcanoes. One of these opened at the top like the jaws of a bull-log, and there were five successive cruptions of white lava sout up vertically about three feet, when the pening closed with a saap, after which the lava slowly trickled slown the sides of the mountain and soon hardened into a crust tke putty. Another das close by had an eruption, sonding up at each discharge, a few seconds apart, small marble shaped balls, most of which fell back into the

"On the west bank of the Firehole river an active geyser centup every tifteen cr twenty minutes a volume of boiling water about ninety feet high. The crater to the depth of thirty foot was lined with a s rasa Bacon's lu form. "Near the Skull Geyser and close by the elver is a most singular boiling pool contin ing a coarse black sant. Prom some in a plicible cause this black sand rises like a buge bubble and falls back, laving the water for an instant turbid, after which it becomes clear as crystal. Each succeeding globe becomes a larger until the seventh which bursts with a report like the crack of a whip. The logker-on instinctively makes a step backward until he becomes accustomed to this pugnacious manner of coming b a climax. This geyser suggests its own aame, the Concussion.

"About two miles cast of the roal lealing ast the Fountain Geyer to the Upper Geyser bashi is the largest lake of botting water in the park or in the world,

"Walpurgia lake is nearly two miles iong y one in width at the widest place. The hores are lined with a black vivatic scoria similar to that form t at Ve-uvius. There is at the head of this lake a powerful gayser continually in action. The west slde of the one nearest the lake gleame i like alabaster through vest clouds of vapor that filled the pasin and floated away into the weeds en the northern shore. The east side was black as abony. The bolling torrent swept over the marble front with a periodical dash and roar that was deafening. It seemed as if a black demon were deluging an angel with a flool of inequity, in spite of which it became purer and whiter. It was name! Mephistopheles and Marguerite."

In p aking of the popularity of the park is a national pleasure resort, Mr. flender-on predicted that the travel this year an i number of visitors would be more than double

GEN. JOE JOHNSTON.

His Peculiar Powers of Observation and Other Characteristics [Cor. St. Louis Republican.]

Here are a few anecdotes of Gen. Jos lohuston, illustrative of his poculiar powers of observation nn i other characteristics of mind which have not appeared in print: After assuming command of the army of the Tennes ee, at Dalton, a grand review was orlered, and Gen. Johnston, superbly mounted on a magnificent thoroughbrel bay, came sweeping down our line, followed by the usual cavalcade of general and staff ollicers. He would hult a moment in front of the colors of each regiment, face to the line and raise his car with marilal grace never excelled. In passing our regiment his quick eye cought the gallant bearing of our toy colonel, dolm E. Murray, then about 21 years of nge, who hat been a ca let at West Point for two years, and was notably distinguished for what the boys called a "gallus sainte." After the parallel tion, debust in a right our brigador, tiovan and inquirol the name of his young colone of the "grand martial salute;" and after earing of his proud achievements as the that y least the brigala he myited him to his headquarters and entertained him for a week The colonel used to say that the picked up more solid chanks of wistom that week than he had everdone in his life be fore." The brilliant career of this gallant boy elesed with the campaign in the last battle aroun i Atlanta, where he "foremost lighting fell" with a bullet-hole turough his commission of brigadier general in his I reast-pocket.

istring this Georgia campaign Gen Jackson would often inspect the hastily constructed into of rifle-pits, and in rilling down the has at full speel he would some times halt suddenly and beckon an other of his staff, and with a few rapid motions of his hand order an anglo roverse ler the lund advanced or retired in conformity with the contour of the ground in front; and on one of the e consions the writer, who was lounging on the ground with his contrales some thirty paces in the rear, made a wager that he could attract the general's attention by a salute. Upon arising and facing toward the a normal as he rushed by, boking in the opposite direction, the writer modestly raised his "coonskins." When the general's white hat shot up in the air in graceful rue gnition, the boys all remarked that the "old man could see as well in th rear as he could in front.

In passing through Jackson, Miss., to tak omman I of the array, a large crowd of citizens and furloughed solllers insisted c his presenting lumself on the platform of th car and making them a speech. He sall: "If all the able-bedied men I see before the were in line at the front there would be n occasion for a retreat of the army."

When he was relieved of command at At lanta his soldiers literally shed towns of hopeless sorrow, and whea tien. Hoot's plan of swinging around to tien. Sherman's rear was fully itetailed to him by a staff officer and his opinion asked as to the wisdom of the plan, he replied with salness in the pr photic words, "Too brilliant."

In social conversation with his stall, on of them asked him how many times he had been w nn'el, "light times." The stiff re marked that he was the most unfortunate general in this respect he had ever known. We regret that we only obtained a copy of Mr. Blain's last card at 5 o'clock in the evening when the matter for the paper was almost made up, otherwise we should cheerfully have published it in full in this issue, as we offerel in an interview to do. As to the argument against the railroad it presents nothing additional to his former communication and we have neither the time nor inclination at present to make any comments. Mr. Blain, however, seems burt at some expressions in our former article, which most strangely, and without reason he thinks were intended by us to be offensive. We had in a personal interview with him, before the issue ever "discourtesy" has been exhibited in the Mississippi in early life. this controversy will be found in his own card. We trust we may venture to differ in opinion from Mr. Blain in this or other questions without deserving to disparage or insult him. The fact is that genuine oils of thewers of which pure American perfumes are made, are imported prinopally from France, and genuine musk and amle rgris, the two nost important and valnable bases for the perfumes, must be obtained in other countries. While the best American-made perfumes are equal in qualto the linest of tue Freuch, could not be the case if we not that country to depend upon for our escential oils. The reason for this is that no sur essful efforts have ter made in the control propriate flowers of ta . in a lithit the of rous blos ons of some of the sonthern states, especially Combinations of these with numbergris and musk result in all the delicious perfumes that are used.

"These flowers, or the most of them, are indigenous to the south of France. Cassia, the blossom of the chanamon tree, comes from the East Lalies, as does the tuberose. Bitter orange is from upper Italy. The oils of violet, tuberose, jasmine, and other deliente flowers, being highly volatile, must be estra tel in a peculiar manner in order t'ent they may be retained any length of time for use. The co-ential oil in violets is the most datile of all flower extracts, and, as the wer itself is the most difficult to grow of buble the value of any other volatile essential of flowers. FAMILY NAMES.

SOME ACCOUNT OF THEIR ORIGIN AND DEVELOPMENT.

Names from the Welsh-Adding Diminntises-Holldays-John and He Prolific Crop of Derivatives - Scripture Names-The Puritans.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.] Americans must look to England for the greater part of their family names, and in England the family mime was first upparouty reated by taking the name of the father and adding it to that of the son. In many parts of Wales this practice is said to to still common, so that it is no remarkable thing for a man to be called Bill O'Jacks, O'Dicks, O'Toms, O'Harrys, An old play, called "S.r John Oldcastle," contains an allusion to this practice. The judge asks: "What is the bail and who the sureties?" One of the parties replies: "Her cozm ap-Rlee, ap-Evan, ap-Morico, ap-Morgan, ap-Llewellyn, ap-Mailoc, ap-Meredith, ap-Grifflu, ap-Ltavis, ap-Owen, ap-Shinkin-Jones.' The judge is properly surprised at the formidable array of friends willing to go on the bond of the prisoner, but is still more sur-prised when he fluds that all these are but one, and he not a very good one at that. The Welsh ap, however, has given us a key to the solution of several names, in which it does not appear as a distinct portion. Thus, ap-Hugh has become Pugh, ap-Rice, Price; ap-Owen, Bowen; ap-Richard, Pritchard, and ap-Howell, Powell.

The tendency in proper names has always been toward attraviation, a short name being invariably more popular t an a long Another method of manufacturing family names was by adding a dimiuntive to the proper name, the chief diminutives in this use being the syllables kin, cock, and et or ot; mnother, ing, being found, but so rarely that it need hardly le mentioned. Using these in combination with proper names, from Simon we have Simpkins or Slmenx; from Williams, Wilkins, Wilcox, and Willett. In early English days the une anti complete is any of perfume to lagar was a favorite way of designating to make it in field to extract them, al. and from this circumstance comes the than's, the Paynes the Pynes, and the Pynsons, to whom may litly be opposed the Christians, the Christies, and the Christians, while the Kltsons are the descendants of some Christopher who was familiarly known autong his friends as Kit.

It is curious to notice the ready manner in which local events, such as festivals of local saints serve the purpose of furnishing names for children. The names of the scripture saints are common enough, but it is not so common to find Holliday, Hockerday and Hobdoy, which all took their origin in the same way by giving the child the name of the day rather than that of the saint in whose honor the day was celebrated. St. Theobabl is remembered in the annals of the saints for many creditable actions but his mme is also found in little suspected quarters. It first became Tibbali, Tibbe, or Tebbe, whence come the Tibbes, the Tebbess, the Tibbetts, and a score of others of the character and smilar sound. Another saint, Gilbert, has been equally nnad the perfume thowers, violet extract is of fortunate with his name. Gib was formerly

More even in the laws and listery of the land close the change in the names with the change in the names with the laws and listery of the l most uncouth appellations that could be discovered in the Old Testament were dragged from their obscurity and forced into use. In their humility the Puritans used sometimes to change their names, giving them-selves such names as Ananias, Supphira, Cain, Absalom, Delilah, Abner, and others, thereby expressing their unwillingness to bear letter. Such names as Earth, Ashes, Delivery, More-Fruit, Tribulation the Lord-is Near, More-Trini. Discipling Joy-Again. From-Above, and Free-Gift were not uncommon, but perhaps the best example to be found is that contained in a jury list in the county of Sassex at the time of the common-

Fashion Every in Novels. {Baltimore Heraid,}

"Fiction," said the bookseder, "changes like the fashlons in bonnets. Just at this time the society novel is all the rage and purely love tales are temporarily afforded a retreat upon the upper shelves. Sansational works are not nearly so generally sought after as they were formerly. Hut the most noticeable and positive change has been in the plan upon which the current novels are built. There has been a dropping of the piot as a substructure, and its adoption merely as an artifice of construction. The opular taste prefers a simple story, with haracters, and the lighter the vein in which the story be tell the mass numerous the readers and the more apparent the appreciaion with which it is received. "The dime novel, as it was originally de-signed by Beadle, is no louger. But thi dime idea has extended to the production of ilrst-class literature in cheap and transieni pamphlet form. The experiment has proven to be an astounding success, and it is estimated that since Its Inception and adoption in this country the realers of sterling fiction have increased three-fold. Gradually books of subjects asile from fiction-such a history, lexicography, biography, poetry-are being reduced into this shape for the benefit of the poorer classes, and there is no doubt but that, step by step, all kinds of books, embracing every sort of lenrning and nciquirements, will be offered in cheap pamphlet e litions."

"Dors popular taste patronize Illustrated works! The bookseller considered a moment and continuel: "The demand for illustrated books of the ilner sort is steadily increasing-particularly when the works are issued in parts by subscription. Fine en-gravings of sculpture and copies of paintings find a ready sale. Illustrated elitions of the standard novels are very popular. Sciontille books have a limited call, and illustrated works, in tints, on natural history are in good deman I. STONEWALL JACKSON'S WAY.

Asleep at a Connett of War-Novel Plan fur a Night Attack.

["W. G. E." In Cldengo Times.} Could an accurate diary of every important council of war held during our late misunderstanding have been kept, it would afford a great deal of interesting reading. The grit, the backbone, the resources, and the mental fertlitty of haders were shown quite as foreibly in these councils as on the buttlefield. Who does not know of the council of Confederate generals called on the night of the first Manassas, and of Jackson's "Clive me 10,000 n en and 1 will go to Washington to-morrow!" Jackson was always unwilling to speak first in a conneil of war; and when the council was called by Lee he was never called upon until the older men and ald soldier chad expressed their opinions.

1)n the night of the battle of Fredericksburg, when llurnside was trying to get his army back to the Statford side of the river wer the one pontoon bridge that was left, to called a connect of war. Jackson had been holding a position about three miles down the river from Marve's heights, where time Rereest tgitting Lai taken place but had moved his command up closer into in the afternoon. The night was fearfully tark, and a drizziling rate had set in. Jack on came into the council, soluted the elli cers pre ent, and tok a seat off in a corner. Gen. Lee stated the purpose for which the council had been called, and asked one of the senior officers for his pinlon; and thea another, and muother, until nil lind spoken save Stonewall. Lee then turned and asked his opinion, but re ceived no response. All turned to hear what he would say, and there sat Jackson olt myright in his chair fast asleep. "Why, blest me," sail Le, "ting old fellow is asleep," and going to him he shook his arm and called his name, which awakened him. Gen. Jackson, will you give in your opinon us to what should be done!"

"Gentlemen," ho said, "I am sorry that I have not heard all that has been said, but my plan is, if the council will agree to it, to go back to my corps and march it into Fredericksburg at once. The enemy has met with a severe reverse, and it is in all preba pility demoralized. They have only one bridge over which to escape. One corps is sufficient to do this work, to destroy what re mains of that army on this side of the river, and that being done the campaign will be

"What if they do! My corps is accustome? to desperate fighting. But the very fact that they have only one avenue of excape, in their demoralized condition, will cause them to make every effort to use the bridge. They will not fight so desperately as you think."

"But consider the darkness of the night. Your men will not be able to distinguish their awn comrades.' "I have thought of all that I will make ny men puli their shirt-tails out and march in; they will know one another then." Gen. Lee walked back nul forth for some time, deeply engaged in thought. Finally he sald: "Gen. Jackson, I can not ngree to your proposition; the slaughter would be horrible, and my constienes can not approve

"My conscience approves of it thoroughly," said Jackson. "War is war; the slaughter to day has been horrible, and would have been werse had the enemy gained those heights. The enemy is in a trap and we should take advantage of it.

"And at this very time," said a Union ofupon us; and if they had dono so we would have been utterly ruined. Pope's prmy. when Jackson got behind him, was at a picuie compare I to our situation that night." And when I told him of Jackson's plan for enabling his trooper to know their comrades, he said: "Fabins Maximus is the only other man who ever lived who would have thought of such a thing, and his soldlers didn't have the materials."

There is some sort of apparatus designed for extinguishing incipient three in almost thances are that there is not a jersoa in the case of need. The directions for use in a fire may be plant and compreheasive, and they may alford all the information needed. Perhaps some person stopping in the Juilding read them as a matter of currouty when the apparatus was first put in. If such was the case, the prospect is that he forgot ali that he ever knew about them in a few days. He never experimented with the newfangied fire extinguisher to ascertain "hew thooid tining worked," and would probably he afraid to use it for fear of injuring his person or clothes. The first thing that a woman is fikely to de when a fire breaks out in a luibling is to scream. The lirst thing the man is likely to do is to try and save his valuatie papers. The next thing both of them will then do is to make their escape. The last thing any one thinks of is the threextinguisher. A THOROUGHFARE.

"SCIENTIFIC STREET" FOR A GREAT CITY.

A Surface Vold of All Immovable (the structions, with Underneath Spaces for Cars, Sewers, Telegraph, Telephone and Electric Light Conductors.

[Brooklya Eagle.]

While the problem of rapid transit by elerate i roads is in cour-e of gradual solution, engineers and men of business are considerng more ambitions plans for this city and New York, involving the construction of this highway of the future is completed its surface will be free from all obstruction which can interfere with the original uses of a the roughfare, while railroads and telein me wires will run beneath the surface. De criptions of the work have already been published, and an especially interesting account of it was given by Mr. Rowland R. Hazard in a paper read before the American institute of Engineers at its meeting in Phila lelphia inst year. The following extract will sufficiently indicate the nature of the plan as proposed for Broadway, New

THE DENERAL PLAN.

The roadway between the curbi furnishes all the accommodation required for all purpoles. it is divided into two sections; the me centrally place i ulfords accommodation for way and expres tunnels. The sections on either side dispuses of the existing impediments of the street at the point of necess to the alutting houses. By this disposition of the street all requirements are fulfilled. smooth, noiseless and unobstructed surface is provided for pedestrian and vehicular traffic. Express and way trains for rapid transit. I'ermanent housing for sewer, water, gas, steam, pneumatic, electric conductors and pipes, with access throughout for inspection, and all the cases in immediate contact with the premises where the connectious are to be made. In neither ex overy high building in this city but the press nor way stations is private property takeu, nor at any point does the structure building that understands how to use it in abut private premises, even during con-

> CONSTRUCTION. The method of construction is as follows: street excavation is effected in sections, and is governed by the extent and character of the traffic. A uniform plutform of concrete, about two feet in thickness, floored by half inch of Trinidad asphait, is laid, extending across the street at the maximum base depth of about seventeen feet, forming a foundation for the whole structure. Upon this is erected the external vault wall, securing to the abutting proprietor the permanent use of the whole vauit uni area unii turbed throughout the standard section. This vault wall is litted while under construction with suitable connections for gas, steam, electricity, sower and water at every house. This wall is also the external wall of the pipe galleries, arranged adjacent to cither curb. The guileries are subdivided longitudinally and continuously, by beams riveted to their internal and inserted in their external wails WHES AND PHES. Access throughout is provided at the termini an i stations, and they are calculated for access to, housing und inspection of the tubes, pipes and serres. The electrical conductors of the various telegraph, telephone, lighting, burglar alarm, messenger companies are mranged anti-inductively, upon -helves riveted to the roof and gallery beams. There being no permanent floo Boor, door-cusings, doors, and furnishings ab we the foundation, the pipes in either gallery are accessible from above or below. Street opening for repair, replacement or on is thus wholly obviated. The internal frame supporting the galieries is t runed by from columns, placed four feet apart, and comcident with those forming the outer wall of the way railway tunnels. These columns are composed of two angle irons riveted, and rest upon a continuous granite foundation. FOUR RAILWAYS. The space remaining between the pipe gallerie, is disposed in four railway tunnels, for the accommodation of an up way and express and a down way and express train. These tunnels are formed by five rows of columns, each composed of four angle from arranged iongitudinally four feet apara resting on a continuous granite base, the spaces between the columns at the founda tion and the roof being illied by a panel composed of a tough, non-resonant material. This panel fulfills a double function: it completes the tunnel for purposes of ventilation, and it prevents reconance, which might be caused by the rapid passage of a train through a tunnel with metallic wails THE ROOF SUPPURT. The roof is supported and the whole structure tiel by beams placed four feet from center, which extend across the entire span " itel at every eight feet to the tunnel ounns, the ends being Inserted in the van't wail. Upon these beams the steel ton span tuckie plate roof is laid and olted; over this is a two inch skin of Trini la ' 18 bat, is a protector from chemical ton tand dampness and as a slight cush 1. Alove this is placed six inches of concrote, which completes the permanent street, Pins structure as a whole contemplates the minimum of excavation, the maximum of capacity, the greatest number and most equal ai-tribution of points of support, and consequent maximum of strength and stiff-

VENTILATION.

The railway tunnels form open cylinders from station to station, and the trains being of uppreximate cross section constitute ioose pistons always inoving in the same direc tion; the obvious effect is the establishmen of a ventilating current, dependent for its force upon the approximation of cross sections and the speed of the trains; as the products of artificial combustion are excluded from the tunnels the requirements of ventilation are reduced to a minimum, and perfeetly performed. The trails ratis and the electrical conductor conduit and the rail arrangement secures perfect alignment, the tie being permanently set in the concrete foundation. While it is not essential to the lan the modern wood pavement now used in London and Paris should by substituted for the noisy granite.

A PHENOMENAL MEMORY,

If you want to find the most unerring and genomenal memory in Washington, climb to the top floor of the capital, at the senate wing, hunt the document room, and inquire for Amzı Smith. You will be met by a tail, slender gentleman of pleasant address, kindly gray eyes, and quick movements. Around him on every sile, arrangel in the numerous shelves, first according to congresses, and next by number under each congress, are the countiess bills, resolution), etc., which aspiring statesmen have launched on both houses since the very earliest days. what is called "the scientific street." When it is a repository, not of what congress has done, but of what the minimerable caravan of wise men and cranks wanted to do-for Smith keeps a record of the bills regardless of their legislative fate

Of course they are carefully indexed by names and theme, lat Santh's memory doesn't need this crutch. The members in preparing Life or reports are always anxlous to know if any steps have heretofore been taken in the same direction, and the oracle to consuit in each case is Smith. You the approach Smith on the subject, no matter what it is, no matter how long ago, and, after pulling the frent lock of his hair for a moment and giving a squint at the ceiling, he will remark, for instance "Why, yes, yon'il find a report of that in 31 of the secon i 33.1" omeaning d cument 33 of the second session of the Thirty-third congress), and he will go for it with the instinct of a ferrat. The solicitous senators insisted on daily reports of his condition from the quiet little country house a few miles from Washington. For many days, as the disease gained on him, it seemed dubious for Smith and his cyclopartic brain, and correspondingly gloomy for the public men who depended on his ready stoch of knowledge. But the clouds broke ut inst, fortunately, and he began slowly to mand. The nature of the complaint led everyone to fear that poor Smith might have wrecked his brain cargo during the mental storm through which he passed. It was a balmy morning in May when Amzi began his return engagement at the old desk, and I was one of the tirst to try whother his brain would answer rolicall in the good old way. FOOD FOR "NERVES."

PARAGRAPHS FROM THE LETTER OF A NOTED PHYSICIAN.

Virtuals and Drink Which "Nervous" Peaple Would Do Well to Let Alone-Animal Food Recommended -Pish, Plesh, Poul.

[Dr. Wm. A Hammond In Youth's Compandon.] i'irst of all, the nervous person must have his stomach put in order. He might just as well try to run n steam engine with art fuel as to conduct his body through life with a stomach incapable of digesting food. For fool stands in the same relation to the body that fuel does to the steam engine. The next question which naturally suggests itself is: What proportion she nid exist between animai and vegetable food in a distary for the Hervons!

In every person, unless there is some very special reason due to bilosynemsy or disease, the existence of which, however, must be extremely rare, minute food should le in excess of that derived directly from the vegetable kingdom. in nervous persons the proportion should is still greater. Indeed, I am not quite sure that it would not be better to exclude, with the exception of bread in some form or other and perhaps certain kinds of fruits, all vege tables from the dietary of nervous people. The two principal reasons for this opinion are: First, the comparatively easy digestifility of animal food. Of course wil the tissues of animals are primarily derived from the vegetable kingdian of insture Caraiv-orons animals cat the thesis and blood and bones of the herbivorn, which are formed bim. Some five years ago he wastaken sud- from grass, grain and other vegetable substances; but the tisk put upon the digastive organs of the former is much less severe than that imposed up in these of the vegeble feeders.

Seconi, animai ford is more nutritious to the nervous system and to the body generally than that derived fr in the vegetable kingdom. As we ordinarily meet with it, it consists of nitragencus matter, in union with certain mineral substances and with fut. We have therefore in it all the evential elements for the formation of the tissues of the body, as well as those for the maintenance of the animal heat, and on it alone it is perfectly possible for man in any climate to exist, and to continue in a normal condition. In cold climates the principal part of his sustenance is derived from this source, and indesi in polar regions vegetable fooi is never ingested by the inhabitants.

The next point to be insisted upon in a dietary for nervous persons, is that it should mitted into the Union. He squinted at the contain a more than usually large perpertion of fat. The form in which this should be employed may generally safely be left to individual preference. Generally, perhaps, It is best taken as cream or butter, but the "Yes, it was in 1874, in the Forty-third, fat parts of beef or mutten are very we'll with most persons. Many nervous people appear to have an instructive craving f r gence was conveyed. The nervous sestem emsite been dimiped in with a grist of documentary largely of fat, and this substance must be supplied in some form or other, in order that the brain and other never strains shall be properly nountshed

But it is is saible to get all the fat required without taking a single atom of it into the stemach. The digestive organs convert blowing or airs of superiority satisfied that sugar and shareh into fat, but in nervous servine in whi mi as ilevisit, thea cr gams are work, it is giverally profunde to get the fut required, realy from I, from the animal king lam, than 1 compositions feebled stomm h, autostines and paintreas to

Now as regards special articles of diet for the nervous person. Milk comes that, It is easily digested and is nutritions. It is sometimes expedient to contine nerveus patients to a diet consisting of nothing but milk, and

Eggs come next in point of general availability. They are nutritions and of easy ligestibility. They possess, in reover, the great advantage of containing a maximum I nutriment in a minimum of buik, and hence they are especially in licate i for the availds in whom it is not advisable to ioil the stomach with much find. Hiweggs, contrary to the generally received common are not so digestible as those in which the albumen has been congulated by heat. As regards the various kinds of "llesh, fish So far as the nervous person is concerned, there is very little difference in the adaptability of beef, mutton, vemson, or of the liesh of the several birts use i as food. it of may, however, be taken as the standard. When not cooked too much, and when sulliciently tender, it answers every purpose of the system. Veal is not so easily digested, and the same may be said of pork, except the sucking pig, which is not only pleasant to the taste, but which is also easily and Fromptly acted up in by the digestive juices. Sait meat is not adopted to the requirements of the nervous jerson. The intritions juces have to a great extent gons into the brine in which it has been scaked. Never thoics, a piece of good ham has an indirect value, in that it often serves as an appet zer, and, hence, as an excitant of the desire of other fool.

Fish of all kinds used as food, oysters, shrimps, crabs, lobstors, are good for ner-veus invalids. All sea animals as well as phorus, a substance that the ner-vous system must have. Oysters are vous system must have. Oysters are more suitable when eat m raw than when cooked, but when roasted or stewed are aimost equally beneficial, and to some persons are more palatable.

As regards vegetables, i am disposed to exclude them with the exception of certain grains used for making bread, and a few fruits in their season, from the district of the persons are of t ary of the nervous person. Of the cereals, oats are far preferable to any other, and the liner they are ground the better.

As to ten, coffee, checulate and all spirituous, vinous or fermented liquors, they form a law unto themselves. It being impossible to lay down any general rule on the subject, It may, however, le said that sprituous ilquors, such as whisky, brandy, rum, gin, are never proper for nervous people.
